NEW YORK'S MORAL LEPER

ored, Respected, and on the Road to the Highest Seat on the Journal Founded by the Great Editor, but

New York, Dec. 6 .- I have found him, and after long searching. Found the journalist who has an income somewhat approaching that which would accrue to him were he a lawyer or a merwould accrue to him were he a lawyer or a mer-chant. I am the proud discoverer of a journalist who makes enough to live, if he chooses, like a prince, and give a little to the poor, by whom I mean, of course, the sub-editors. The striking facts which have come into my possession concerning him, and which I know to be facts, are too interesting to suppress. They illustrate not only the tendencies of certain news-napers and of certain classes of newspaper readers. papers and of certain classes of newspaper readers ut serve to restore a waning faith in the Calvin-stic theory of rewards and punishments. This successful journalist, who has something esides noteristy to live upon, is besides notoriety to live upon, is

of the New York Sun. Mr. Dana's income, outside of dividends from his stock, outside of any money he may make in operations in which his paper is an instrument, outside of any extra professional employment, is close on to $30,000 a year. It is derived in this way: His salary is $10,000 a year, about the average compensation of editorsin-chief hereabouts. But by a stipulation of the contract he receives fifty per cent. of the dividends of the paper above twenty-five per cent, when they exceed that amount. That is to say, that when the dividends reach thirty-five per cent, as they will probably do this year, twenty per cent, in dividends having already been declared, Mr. Dana receives five per cent, which makes, on the stock capital of the paper, $50,000, the snug little sum of $17,500.

This is a mere bonus, and thus makes his earnings depend directly upon the profits of the paper. Ferhaps this may explain why the ruling metive in its management sometimes seems to be the desire to sell a copy. This makes $27,500, with the prospect of increase whenever there has been a "good season." But this is not all of Mr. Dana's income. He is a large stockholder. Three years ago he held ninety of the three hundred and fifty shares, and it is thought that he now owns many more. Thirty or thirty-five per cent, dividends on these swell the total considerably. Then, too, Mr. Dana is interested in the copyright of the "Household Book of Poetry," but derives a much larger sum from his labors on the "American Encyclopudia," for which he is allowed a commission on each volume sold. Salary, stocks, bonds, Cyclopaedia and copyright—these amount up into a total which one is CHARLES A. DANA, these amount up into a total which one is

to estimate, for it is the product of the labor of one energetic and unscrupulous man.

This is the money Mr. Dana makes. As to the way in which he makes it, that is quite a different thing. He is credited, on vary good anthority, with the remark, just as he was about taking the Sun, that "he had tried to make money respectably long enough, and now he was going to make money." I have shown that he has made it; perhaps it would be charitable to leave, as he did, his methods for inference. Those methods are, however, by this time, pretty well understood. It has never been difficult to see that Mr. Dana's object in editing the Sun was, first, last and all

TO GET TWO CERTS FOR IT;
and after that to gratify a thousand harbored grudges. He has succeeded in both these aims probably far beyond his expectations. But he has accomplished both at the expense of a repntation which he can never regain. He has filled his pocket and hung his belt with scalps, but he has lost his social and journalistic standing forever. It is no exaggeration to say—for, indeed, everything here is stated on the side of moderation—that Charles A. Bana, the promising man of lotters, a capable Assistant Scoretary of War, a co-editor of the "American Cyclopedia" with George Riplay is tady absolute.

A SOCIAL OUTCAST.

HIS PAPER IS EVER MENTIONED. and still fewer in which it is spoken of in a friendly fashion. Politically he is a cipher, so far as his personal influence is concerned. He has attacked every organization and every party and every set of politicians so indiscriminately that all are his enemies except good_natured Henry Wilson, who wasn't ashamed to be seen talking with any ane.

Wilson, who wasn't ashamed to be seen talking with any one.

It is not difficult to account for all this. Mr. Dana is ostracted by society, by his brother editors and by public men, because he is known to be the active and ruling mind of the Sun, not the editor who merely directs and supervises, but the editor who writes leaders, paragraphs and squibs, who orders articles copied, and not only guides but makes the tone of his paper. That tone rearcely needs description. It is always vivacious and keen at the same time that it is coarse, disingencous and not unfrequently fairly Disgraced by actual indecency.

There have been aditorial paragraphs in the Sun which refined women could not understand, but which even refined gentlemen could not help comprehending because speech is so free now-adays, and which have been simply outrageous. But this singular paper is not content with this; it goes out of its way to find such things. It is ease to say that if any exchange prints a story or a joke containing a suggestion or a franker expression of impurity, that article runs an excellent chance of being copied in the Sun. If it contains any details of a disregard of the seventh commandment, it cannot escape a reprint. The Sun is the only paper beside the Hereid that continues to supply its readers with murders and executions. It will disreared important political movements for the sake of some revolting butchery, which is sure to had its way into the most prominent place in the paper. Its appetite for these and worse things is simply amazing. Mr. Dana's assistant, who wields the shears, seems to have standing orders to hunt up horrible murders and descriptions of nameless crimes.

The political methods of the paper are not different from those exhibited in its other estumns. How boildly unscruptions and slanderous it is need hardly be told, or how much harm it does the side in politice that it champions. It makes charges without submitting proof, rails on public men without thyme or reason, and DISGRACED BY ACTUAL INDECENCY.

FLINGS MUD RIGHT AND LEFT, until its abuse has almost come to be a certificate of good character. And yet few will believe that this appearance of reckless bravery is, after all, more bravade. Mr. Dans is a professional coward. When the Philadelphia ring fhreatened him with imprisonment for libel he had his passage secretly engaged for Europe, and seriously intended flight. Not even the prospect of becoming the great journalistic martyr of the age could induce him to brave the rigors of the Pennylyania Mbel law. So, also, fival papers can bully him. It was not very long any that he began one of his crusades signist the Deily Graphic. The Graphic stood it for a while, and then sharply gave the Sun to understand that its best course was PLINGS MUD RIGHT AND LEFT, blackmailing Fisk and Gould when those twain worthles were at the head of the Eric railway. I should hardly have believed that any newspaper was worth so much space, but this is a phenomenon in journalism, a paper openly on the side of the heathen. Its audactly and cowardice, its ability and its heaviness, its keen and mortal thursts and its brutal sledge-hammer blows, its popular price, these and style, its filth and slander, its pungent paragraphs and brief-telling editorials—these make it the most interesting study in New York journalism. It CATERS TO A HALF-FRICE CONSTITUENCY, and it has gained it. One hundred and thirty thousand is the circulation it claims, and, doubt-less, has. It reaches the honest poor, the semi-liliterate and semi-refined, the wholly valgar and deprayed, and those who are not capable of sustaining even the moderate tax on the intellectual faculties imposed by an eight-nage paper.

less, has. It reaches the honest poor, the semiilliterate and semi-refined, the wholity vulgar and depraved, and those who are not capable of sustaming even the moderate tax on the intellectual faculties imposed by an eight-page paper.
Whether the Sun, feared and hated as it is, has any real infinence after all, is doubtful. The classes which it infinences are manipulated in polities like so many wooden fisures, and are managed by persons who appreciate the Sun at its true value.

This is all the two-cent journalism we have in this country worthy of the name. There is a littie sheet here called the Evening Mail, which has no infinence whatever, and vry little sirculation.
The Evening Telegrem is a much brighter and more enterprising sheet, but it possesses too many of the unstable characteristics of its bigger half, the Herald, to live through the afternoon. I don't know of any other two-cent paper in the country besides the Sun which has a large chronlation, or a similar faculty of abuse. Those who digest the facts given above will, I think, agree with me that it has not only never done two cents worth of good, but that it has done an infinite amount of harm. Its mode of life and its prosperity combine to perpetuate the doubt whether any two-cent paper can become successful without the support of the devil.

Professor Bischoff was unable to perform, a mistake having been made in sending the wrong planot to the hall.

The Marine band, under the leadership of Prof. Schneider, excented their selections with much arace and ease, and brought forth frequent plaudits from an appreciative audience. The orphans acquitted themselves well, having careful and thorough training. It would be a difficult matter to particularize, judging from enthusiastic appliance to frant and other distinguished personages were present, and seemed to be highly pleased with the exercises. Wm. The National Theatre-Mr. John T. Baymond Col. Mulberry Sellers is a gentleman with whom everybedy is acquainted. He stands on every street corner and invades every public place. He is the type and representative of that peculiar class of people who have an unbounded faith in visionary schemes, and who, with all their mis-fortunes, are sustained by the natural impulses of a generous heart. Whatever is to the lite is always pleasant. Whatever is true wit and satire is always keenly enjoyed, even though if hits home. This is the one and only secret of the sucheme. This is the one and only soor-ce the miccess of Mr. Raymund's assumption of Col. Sellers' character. Genius constructed it, rather seized upon it, and made a find word-painting of it.
Genius again comprehended it and acts it out.
The world looks on and laughs, and will continue to do so for long years to come, because the character will always be alive. Colonel Sellers' friends crowded the theatre last night, and they will again to-night. Whether drunk or sober, selling eye-water, defending the eppressed, or advocating any of his splendid schemes for suddenly becoming rich, he has the sympathy of his audience, and that is everything. As the years ge on Mr. Raymond rounds out, perfects and finshes the character, and makes it more interesting. As one of the greatest of modern dramatic representations we very earnestly advise the patrons of the theatre to enjoy it. Mrs. Raymond as Laura Hawkins was both forcible and elegant throughout; a most beautiful woman beautifully performed her role. Miss Eugenia Paul, Mr.
Harry Peasson, Mr. G. W. Denham and Mr. B.
W. Glenn materially contributed to the success of the play. To-night it will be repeated.

The rising generation in Great Britain appear likely to be equal, if not excel, their sires in those manly qualities for which the latter are now distinguished. Scarcely a day elapses without some child being brought before a magistrate charged with drunkenness; and there are not wanting symptons to show that the children of the present day are emulating their fathers in the commission of aggraved assaults. Two boys, factory workers, living at Seikirk, named Wilson and Leonard, severally aged fourteen and thirteen years, were charged at the Galashiels Burgh Court, Wilson with assault, and Leonard with being drunk and incapable. It seems that on receiving their fortnight's pay the two children went off "on the spree" to Galashiels, where, after spending some time in a public-house, they sailled out separately into the streets for a little amusement.

A Great Land Swindle.

St. Louis, Dec. 13.—A supendous land swindle has just been uncarthed in southeastern Missouri. It appears that deeds to lands in northern Arkansas and southeastern Missouri have been forged for some years past, and that agencies for this work were established in Cincinnati, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, New York and Manchester, England. It is estimated that deeds to over 1.20000 acres of land have been disposed of, the 1,305,000 acres of land have been disposed of, the valuation being from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. The land operated upon is owned by non-resident, and as the records were meetly destroyed during the late way, the ring had every facility to carry out the enormous swindle. Deads have been seed all over the United States and England. The grand jury of Shannon county, Mo., have indicated Dr. Thos. H. Harmon Davis, S. Bingham and James L. Lawton for complicity in the frand. Lawton seems to have been the leader of the swindlers, and operated extensively in England.

The following officers were elected for the easilm year: President, J. V. Cornell; secretary, Jan. Pelton, and treasurer, Bowice Colgate. Murphy's struck McAleer in the left breast, near the nipple, causing death in about ten minutes. The cause of the difficulty was a dispute about a claim by McAleer of debt in the sum of $2.

FIFTEEN MILLIONS STOLEN. The Guatemalan Minister's Trunk Snatch from an Express Wagon-

The Guatemalan Minister's Trunk Snatched from an Express Wagon.

The New York Sun says: A trunk containing fifteen million dollars' worth of bends was stolen from one of Dodd's express wagons, at Watts and Canal street, on Saturday. The bonds was tolen from one of Bodd's express wagons, at Watts and Canal street, on Saturday. The bonds were in the care of the Minister from Guatewala, who arrived in this city on Friday. They were to be used as part of a payment due the United States Government. The Minister, Senor Don Viceote Durdon, was staying at No. 12 East Forty-second street, and on Saturday, intending to go to Washington, he packed the bonds in his trunk. A bootblack named Clark, who was arrested last night by Detective Yon Gerichten, says that as he was standing in Canal street he saw Dodd's Wagon being driven past. Three men sprang out, darted across the street, and in a moment stole the trunk. Detectives Dunn and Yon Gerichten arrested a well-known thief named Fuller, and he was identified by the bootblack. Clark says that when Fuller took the trunk he heard one of his comrades say to him, "Cheese it, Fuller; cheese it." The superintendent of the express company thought that the trunk had been minished. When the news of the robbery was made known to the Guatemalan Minister he fell in a faint, and required medical assistance to restore him. He said that the bonds could not be replaced. He went to Washington has night. Imprestor Diks, Superintendent Walling and the cutire detective force are engaged searching for the thieres. Fuller was recently released from the penitentiary.

After the summary disposition of numerous resolutions looking to bringing the conference down to real business, a resolution was adopted providing that all persons to be voted for should be placed in nomination, and the one receiving the lowest vote on each ballot be dropped, and the person so dropped to be renominated only twice, and if any person be withdrawn after bang nominated he should be remominated only once. Under this ruling, the following names were presented to the conference: Mesers, Goode, Letcher, Johnston, Smith, Start, Flourney, John W. Daniel, of Lynchburg; W. J. Robertson, of Albermarie county; J. W. Sheffey, of Smythe county; Robt. A. Ooghill, of Amberst; A. B. Ockrane, of Augusta; John T. Harris, of Rockingham; J. R. Tucker, of Rockbridge. Conspiring to Remove a Postmaster. LEAVENWORTH, KAN., Dec. 12.—It will be re-membered that Embry, the man who attempted to assassinate Colonel D. R. Antheny last May, published an article severely reflecting upon Anthony's official acts as postmaster of this city. These charges were proven to be unfounded. Within the past week Anthony has ascertained that James F. Legate and a man named Coney have been active in obtaining amdavits to effect his removal, and be has set detectives to work to his removal, and he has set detectives to work to ferret out all the parties engaged in the matter. It seems from developments which have already been made that these affidavits were procured from ignorant persons, generally colored men, who could neither read nor write, and contained such charges as Legate and Coney wanted to make against Anthony. Eleven of these persons have stated that they were imposed upon, and were required to make and swear to faise statements. Legate started to Wa-hington some days ago, taking with him these faise affidavits, but copies of them were left here, which were obtained by the detectives, and from them it was ascertained what these ignorant peeple had sworn to. Legate and Coney will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

An Important Question Settled.

An Important Question Settled.

In the case of Hall and Sybrand against Lunning et al., from the lilinois circuit, yesterday decided in the United States Supreme Court, a very important question touching the faith and credit to be given to the judgments of one State in the courts of another was settled. In this case a judgment was obtained against the plaintiffs in error as partners in New York, Hall only being served with process and appearing. Sybrand was a non-resident of the State, and had ceased to be a partner with Hall more than six months before the suit. The court below decided that the judgment sued on was conclusive of what it set out, and that Sybrand was not entitled to be heard as to his matters of defense. This court reverse that judgment, holding that in such a case the service of process upon and the appearance of one of the former partners cannot have the effect to give the court jurisdiction of the others out of the State, and who are not served with process, and that the judgment sued upon therefore did not bind Sybrand.

Unsattled Accounts. An Important Question Settled-

Unsettled Accounts.

Unsettled Accounts.

The resolution offered by Senator Davis in regard to defrauders is prefaced by a preamble saying it is asserted that no reports have been made to Congress since March 2, 1863, under the act of March 3, 1869, which requires the Comptroller of the Treasury to make an annual statement of accounts in the Treasury, War and Navy Departments that have remained unsettled or been due three years; or under the act of March 2, 1817, which requires said Comptroller to report annually a list of officers who have falled to make settlement of accounts of expenditures of public money. The resolution therefore requests the Secretary of the Treasury to inform the Senate whether such reports have been made since March 2, 1865, and if not, why not? The resolution makes a similar request concerning the requirement of section 32 of the Revised Statutes, that the Comptroller of the Treasury shall annually prepare a report of such efficers as shall have falled to settle their accounts for the preceding fiscal year within the year, or within such further time as may have been prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Department Office Hours.

It has been the current impression among our citizens that the recent increase in the hours of clerical service in the Departments was mainly owing to the positive requirements of a law of 1856 which had long been obsolete but was lately re-ensoted in the revised statutes. This impression received color from the fact that they actually do contain this law of the past. But the fact is that when it came to the knowledge of Congress that this cleec of forgism had been perpatrated in the revision of the statutes, they practically repealed it by enacting the following, June 20, 1874, viz: "That it shall be the duty of the heads of the several Executive Departments and of the heads of the several Executive Departments and of the heads of the respective bureaustherein in the interests of the public service to require of all clerks of class one and above, and of chiefs of divisions, such hours of labor as may be deemed necessary for the proper disparate of the public business, not exceeding, however, the time for which said Departments are by law required to be open for business, any usage to the contrary notwithstanding." (P. 108, vol. 18, Statutes at Large.)

It is, therefore, clear buyond question that the existing laws leave the matter of the hours required of the elerks at their desire to the discretion of the sizes of the recent order requiring them to premar an additional hour. It is not an likely that this order will be found upon trial to be a minister, and vary far from being "in the interests of the public service."

respect only is well suited for its present use. It is commodious and comfortable, and were there not in the vicinity a soap factory, which unisacce will doubtless be abated by the Board of Health will doubtless be absted by the Board of Health before the next warm season, is healthy and pleasant. While the circical force authorized by law is rather small for the amount of work to be performed, it is usually possible to obtain temporary assistance from other offices, thus avoiding delay in the work. The chief objection is, however, to the words above italicised, An insufficient ciercial force affords no excuss for insert racies. Work might be delayed on this account, and some of least importance omitted, but insocuracy of statement is not, octainly, permitted upon such grounds.

Yesterday alpart of the Democratic wisdom of the nation was assembled in caucus at the Capitol, and some business was transacted which a thouand some business was transacted which a thousand years hence may be of great benefit to the Egyptians, but having ne reference who ever to anything concerning the present generation.
The caucus indulged in the pleasure of charging a very large gasometer with exploded ideas, and then solemnly resolved to have a committee of two appointed by the chairman of the caucus, to whom should be confided the preparation of doesments for the next Presidential campaign, (a labor, by the way, which no two Democrats in the world can perform,) and after this feat was accomplished they resolved to have a committee of thirty-seven, one from each State, appointed by the Chair, charged with the duty of proparing matter deemed necessary for party action during this session of Congress. This was all they did;
that is to say, all the public knew anything about, but it is reasonably surmised that, as a body, they took several forward steps toward that perdition

The Administration and the South-Under this caption the New York World prints the following dispatch from Washington. Ex-actly how the World writer got his information is a mystery, as reputable Hepublicans like Judge Settle and Col. Keogh are not in the habit of Settle and Col. Keogh are not in the habit of holding communications regarding political matters with the enemy. It is therefore probable that the entire stery is a hear:

"Washingrox, Dec. 12.—in mone of the documents laid before Congress by the Administration has a single word been said about the Southern States, the condition of which was the subject of so many sanguinary manifestes in the campaign a year ago. As set forth in these dispatches last week, this omission will be supplied early in the session, when a special message will be sent in on the subject. It is understood that the report of the Attorney General, which under the law is sent to Congress instead of to the President, will be devoted mainly to a review and a narrative of the state of affairs in the Soath. Judge Settle, of North Carolina, who presided over the last Republican National Convention in Philadelphia, and Col. Keogh, the charman of the Republican State Central Committee of the same State, are in the city, for the purpose, it is understrood, of consulting with the President is regard to the forthcoming message. Mr. Keogh is a strong advocate of a third term, and is certain that North Carolina can be carried for Grant next year."
